POLICY CORNER

This week, the San Diego City Council's Public Safety Committee, which I am a member of, voted to support the smart streetlights with cameras and the automated license plate readers (ALPR) that the San Diego Police Department proposed. The light's video cameras and ALPR help prevent and solve crimes.

An amendment to the Street Preservation Ordinance (SPO) passed unanimously to assure that streets will be properly and fully repaired when utility companies make trenches.

The Safe Sleeping site at 20th and B Operations Yard is up and running. The Safe Sleeping Program provides security, safe legal camping space, and wrap-around resources to put unsheltered San Diegans on the path to permanent housing.

CAÑON STREET POCKET PARK

Plans for the new Cañon Street Pocket Park in Point Loma are now moving forward. The project near the intersection of Akron Street and Cañon Street includes walkways, planting, irrigation, safety lights, site furnishings, playground equipment, and a public art piece. Construction is expected to start next month and be completed by the summer of 2024.

SAN DIEGO PRIDE

It was an honor to join San Diego Pride Week this year. The weeklong festivities began with the presentation of the LGBTQ+ Pride Month Proclamation with Mayor Todd Gloria, Councilmembers Stephen Whitburn, and Marni von Wilpert on July 7th where a new Proud Pride Flag was unfurled at the California Tower. On July 8th, I attended the She Fest event, which empowers women, non-binary, straight, and gay. My staff and I also took part in the San Diego Pride Parade, where more than 250-thousand people came to support the LGBTQ+ community.
